

Ypemaouth. Nov 2. 1838.

Friday evening.

Dear Deborah, I am anxious to write to you, for as Maria will probably give you an account of the manner in which I snatched her out, you may think that we were in a very distressed state, our cups running over. But I am happy to assure you we are very comfortable & getting on very well. I was anxious to get Lizzy off her aunt though we can do very well with Henry alone, or Lizzy alone, or with both together can manage, if either of them be ill enough to be confined to their room, yet with both well enough to be together. I need not tell you there was no rest or peace. We have put the house all back into its place, had Mrs White to wash yesterday & ironed today. I send Caroline & Maria's things and one or two articles books to that Lizzy left. The things will I believe come by the stage & you must send out in the same way if you have no other chance & it is not like you will have, as Mr. Cowing went in yesterday. Send out Emma's cloak, I suppose the coat had better wait for another chance. Also the lining for little Henry's coat, and get an answer to Mrs Fifield's message. Of course you will send all the papers and give a full account of your experiences since you wrote last. You must remember it is a fortnight since we heard ~~ourselves~~ from you. Write particularly how Lizzy is and whether she seemed to have taken any cold.

London may send the cloth she spoke of if it be in town.
I send a letter to Angelina Howe which I wrote a week ago but forgot to send it in by Maria. Will you leave it there to-morrow & tell her I was disappointed about sending it. Aunt Priscilla is as usual. Aunt Phoebe has been poorly, but is now better. No news from my

I inclose Ange's letter in this & a note from Aunt Mary.
I want you to be careful to send all the news you can lay your hands on for of course I am rather in a famishing state. But in the Liberator if you are all done with it. and all the papers of every port.

In case Maria should have forgot Mrs. Fields' direction the place where she is to go, is Parker & Ditson's, corner of School St. If she has not been you can go.

Give my love to Lizzy & tell her we quite missed her.
I have written in the midst of confusion but you must pick up out the meaning of the various commissions & get Warren to carry down the bundle at noon, but if he does not come up, why you can carry down a little bundle yourself omitting Emma's cloak. I shall depend upon hearing when Linfield comes.
